[1] Duncan MacDermott, Africans at the Heart of Southern Africa, (London: 1952).

[2] The matrilineal male leader is called anyanu mlanda (=author of the matrilineal group) the village headman anyanu mzai (=author of the village) and the chief anyanu dziko (=author of the land). The word anyanu could be translated as owner but see note p. 146. Important headmen and chiefs are both referred to by the term mwenye.

[3] The honorific Ch is dropped from all Yao proper names mentioned in this paper.
